Comments:

On Dean's arrival as Librarian of Victoria College on July 1, 1960, the library had a staff of thirteen and contained 60,000 volumes. Dean's academic acument and foresight saw the collection and staff reach levels of "approximately 130 and a collection approaching 1.5 million volumes." Dean formulated and oversaw "the library building which opened in 1964, and then tripled in size in1973." Prior to his retirement, Dean laid the foundations of library automation for his successor, Marnie Swanson.
